Alternative asset manager, PILinvests, has introduced a U.K. Bridging Finance fund, Financial Times reports. The fund, which will run for five years, will offer bridging finance to selected borrowers.

The fund is aiming to capitalize on the liquidity crisis due to the existing credit crunch. James Sullivan, the firm's managing director, said the bridging finance market is likely to grow from £2.5 billion in 2005 to £5.6 billion by 2010.
